SERIOUS Trouble Again In Hamburg, Tenn.

Another Big Fight!

O. C. HAGY & CO.

Have opened a new Millinery Store under the management of Miss May Bub, an expert milliner employed in St. Louis Emporium Millinery Co's. large Hat Store. Aint it a sight to see a lady who can trim a hat, select a nice summer dress and all trimmings, capable of making trimmings of the dress and hat match to make the ugliest old maid in this county look like a sixteen year older.

Then again it is strange how a nice milliner can get up all these beautiful Hats with beautiful trimmings, and select beautiful dresses with beautiful trimmings, all at the same cost it would be if you were to select from some incomplete stock of Hats and Dry Goods, and get an outfit that was not becoming, neither beautiful nor tasty. This stock of Millinery has a complete line of chenille belts and ties with spikes, all the latest shirt waists, silks and a complete line of ladies' novelties, not surpassed anywhere.

Another Serious Trouble

Disturbing the minds of the people is how O. C. HAGY & CO. can sell Groceries at such ridiculously low prices.

Protection of the Mails.

The Post Office Department is utilizing all means to insure the security of mail matter, and it may not be generally known that the government conducts from time to time tests of inventions designed with this end in view. The post office has suffered considerable losses by organized thieves who were dressed in uniform like government mail collectors and provided with duplicate keys. An electrical device for protecting the letter boxes is now being tested. A number of mail boxes with electrically controlled locks have been installed on one of the mail routes in the business section of the capital, says the Western Electrician. The electrical locking devices are under the control of an operator at the central station in the Post Office where there is a clock, similar in appearance to the ordinary watchman's clock, provided with a mechanism which prints numbers of the mail boxes when they are opened and when they are closed. The first box must invariably be visited first by the collector, as this box controls the lock of box number 2, box number 2 of number 3 and so on. After allowing the mail collector time to reach the first box, the operator at the central station presses a button which releases a secondary locking device, and allows the carrier's key to throw the lock bolt. The opening of this box performs the same service for box number 2 as that performed by the operator at the central; that is, sets automatic-

A Raging Roaring Flood.

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. O. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me an terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." ly the lock for the collector's key to open. Since succeeding boxes are set by the one last opened, it is obvious that the predetermined order of visitation by the collector must be strictly adhered to. The act of opening and closing each mail box is instantly recorded on a time dial at "central," and in case of unlawful attempts being made to open them Central is instantly notified of "trouble on route" by the ringing of an electric bell. Should the occasion arise when the collector desires to communicate with the operator at central, he can do so by pressing a button at any mail box, a prearranged code of signals permitting the sending of a few important messages.—Scientific American.

The White House.

The day at the White House begins with breakfast at 9, after which the President and Mrs. McKinley look over the papers, separating at 10, when the President goes to his desk and remains, giving audiences and discussing important matters with his staff, until luncheon is served at half-past 1. Following the noon-day meal the President spends an hour with Mrs. McKinley, returning to his office for a couple of hours' work before they take their outing at half-past 4. More work consumes the time after their return from riding until dinner is served at 7, an hour to which the President adheres in spite of the fashion. The evening is passed in social intercourse, some of the Cabinet or old friends from Ohio dropping in to call. No matter what the pressure of public business, the President keeps the Sabbath holy. In the morning he invariably goes to church; in the afternoon he sometimes rides with Mrs. McKinley, but no entertaining is done on that day, which is devoted to rest and relaxation in the good, old-fashioned way.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Legislature.

The Fifty-second General Assembly of the State of Tennessee did not adjourn Monday but held over a day or two to transact important matters.

Taking the session as a whole its actions are to be commended. About 1,700 bills were introduced in the two branches and only a few of the important ones remain on the calendar.

It put itself on record for a dog law and the stand taken for temperance will commend the body to the people who have worked for the abolition of the saloons and the whisky traffic.

A hard fought battle was that for a constitutional convention but it failed by a margin. Several amendments to the constitution were proposed—some of them excellent measures—notably, one to make the Governor's term of office four years, and the state officers elective by the people and for a like term. Also for all elections to be held at one time, in November.

Paulks.

There is a great deal of sickness in this community.

Prof. Alonzo Phillips visited his parents at Rath last week.

Miss Annie Rich'e of near Savannah is visiting her sister, Mrs. Joe Fowler.

Mrs. Alice Polk, daughter and son of Cerro Gordo visited at Mr. N. W. Watson's last Saturday.

We are sorry to report Mrs. Mattie Fowler very sick.

Little Paul, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Libam died at his home at Willoughby last Thursday night and was buried at Mt. Hermon on Saturday. To the bereaved family and relatives we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Rev. G. W. Robertson will preach at Robertsons Chapel next Sunday at 11 a. m.

There will be a sacramental meeting at Mt. Hermon the first Sunday in next month.

JULIA.

Cross Roads School House.

Our Sunday-school is quite flourishing. We had an excellent Easter service and quite a crowd gathered and enjoyed the exercises. We had good behavior throughout, although the distillery is with in half a mile, and is causing much trouble to us all, now using up large quantities of corn to make that which ruins both soul and body, when the corn is so much needed for bread and stock feed. There is a day of judgment coming, and what will the answer be? Some of our most capable men are ignoring our Sunday-school, too busy with worldly concerns, on the Lord's day, to lend aid to the Sunday-school work, and help in the good cause. We expect to be represented in the County convention at Walker school house on the first and second days of May. Rev. White preaches for us once a month and speaks quite encouragingly to the Sunday-school.

Health is fairly good now, and farmers planting corn and cotton as fast as they can, cheerfully hoping for a good crop.

WELL WISHER.

Swift.

Robert Russell has been quite sick but is some better.

Roy Smith, who has been very low for some time, has rallied up a little.

Lum Turner, who has been down all winter with lung trouble is now able to be out a little.

Mrs. Cook on Hardin's creek, mother of Dr. Cook at Clifton, is not expected to live.

Mrs. Kittie Moore, wife of J. O. Moore and who once lived near Savannah, has been at his fathers several weeks in feeble health. She is confined to her bed.

We have preaching at Shady Hill twice a month, but alas, it is counterbalanced by the drink (Continued on page 4)
